MEETING THE MENTAL HEALTH NEEDS OF OLDER ADULTS

As men and women get older, they often experience emotional distress due to grief, loss and lifestyle change. Increased medical complications and chronic illnesses, including cognitive capabilities, can also contribute to emotional upheaval. While some anxiety and depression is normal, experiencing low or anxious moods for an extended period of time may require specialized attention. Riveredge Hospital understands the complexities and fragility of older adults and is committed to helping individuals cope emotionally and physically.
